New BOK Framework

The ACMPE Board Certification examinations will begin reflecting the new BOK framework December of this year*. In response to our ever-changing industry and as the certifying body for standards of excellence in medical practice, the American College of Medical Practice Executive (ACMPE) identified the need to update the Body of Knowledge (BOK) for medical practice administration. Representatives of our membership's entire demographic helped to identify and prioritize the critical tasks of our profession. The result-- a new BOK framework covering the updated domains of Operations Management, Financial Management, Human Resources, Transformative Healthcare Delivery, Risk and Compliance, and Organizational Governance. New resources released this month including a study guide, workbook, practice assessment (mock scenario-based and multiple-choice exams) and the preparation series has been updated.

For those most comfortable in testing under the current BOK framework, you must test by the end of November! And, for those interested in testing under the new BOK framework, if you take the tests between December 1st-31st, you will qualify for a promotion of $50 off a product.*

Continuing Education

As a reminder, MGMA national, state, and local LIVE webinars and events count towards the 12 MGMA LIVE required hours. With the current pandemic, there are a lot of questions on the LIVE hours. These are not required to be face-to-face—just LIVE. Our recent NCMGMA Fall Forum counts as LIVE hours and also any NCMGMA webinars you participate in count, too!

Live Online-Proctored Testing Available

Live online-proctored testing started in August. You currently have the option for on-demand testing at over 500 Scantron testing locations, or until January 1, 2021 you may select the Live online-proctored format from the safety of your home. There are no longer testing windows, and tests may be taken at any time.
